Surprise Move Sends Saratoga With 6th Fleet

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The aircraft carrier Saratoga will steam from the United States toward the Mediterranean Aug. 22 to strengthen the U. S. 6th Fleet with its flat-top.

The Defense Department has no reason for its surprise announcement Monday that the Mediterranean fleet's carrier force would be bolstered by the 60,000-ton Saratoga.

It said only that the move was "part of a continuing program to improve the fleet's capabilities and posture of the United States."

But in the background, these factors:

—The move will strengthen America's floating Sixth Fleet when U.S. land bases are being criticized in some quarters.

Navy to Send 3rd Carrier to Europe

By NEWSPILOT BUREAU
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U. S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean will be reinforced with the addition of a third aircraft carrier, the Pentagon announced today. The 60,000-ton flat-top Saratoga will sail Aug. 22 from Norfolk, Va., and the strength of the powerful Mediterranean fleet will be maintained with three instead of two carriers from now on. Neither the Defense Department nor the Navy offered any reason for this decision.

Washington (UPI)—The U. S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean will be bolstered with the addition of a third aircraft carrier, the Defense Department announced today.

The 60,000-ton super carrier Saratoga will sail from Norfolk Aug. 22. The powerful Mediterranean fleet's strength there will be kept at three.

Third Carrier Assigned To Sixth Fleet

WASHINGTON, D. C. (AP)—Reinforcement of the 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean with assignment of a third aircraft carrier was announced yesterday by the Navy.

The Navy also said that the 7th Fleet in the Western Pacific would be maintained at the three-carrier level. It has varied from two to three carriers in the past.

The announcement said the additions were "part of a continuing program to improve the military capabilities and posture of the United States."

The carrier Intrepid and Saratoga will join the 6th Fleet. The big carriers, Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Hancock, will return to the Atlantic Coast next month.

The 7th Fleet now has a super-carrier Ranger and smaller carriers Oriskany and Kitty Hawk. In the reshaping of the fleet, the carriers are scheduled to be replaced next month.

U.S. Bolsters Fleet in Mediterranean

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy announced a major reinforcement of the 6th Fleet with assignment of a third attack carrier to the force regularly operating in the Mediterranean. Officials speculated this could move to bolster U.S. striking power in the European area until the increased striking strength resulting from the additional carrier deployment is "part of a continuing program to improve the military capabilities and posture of the United States," the Navy said. The reinforcement was recommended by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Carrier Saratoga Ordered to Join 6th Fleet Forces

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean will be bolstered today. The 60,000-ton carrier Saratoga, Va., Aug. 22. The power strength thereafter will be kept at three carriers instead of the two it has had for years. Neither the Defense Department nor the Navy gave a reason for the surprise announcement that the Sixth Fleet will be strengthened in a way recommended several years by fleet commanders.

An announcement said only the move was "part of a continuing program to improve the military capabilities and posture of the United States." The aircraft carriers Intrepid, Hancock, both 33,000 tons, had been scheduled for conversion to anti-submarine carriers. Now will be kept on the Atlantic as attack carriers. The Navy also said the Strakestown, U.S. Seventh Fleet, operating in the Pacific, like that in the Mediterranean, "for the next year" will be replaced by the Strakestown. The Seventh Fleet usually has four carriers.

Support the larger of the 50-ship unit. The 50-ship 6th fleet will be taken around the big Roosevelt and Franklin D. Roosevelt. These two carriers will return to the Atlantic coast next month. The 7th Fleet now has the supercarriers Ranger and the small carriers Oriskany and the small carriers Kitty Hawk and the scheduled.

Saratoga Sails Creates Mystery

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The aircraft carrier Saratoga with 90 airplanes aboard will steam from the United States toward the Mediterranean Aug. 22 to strengthen the U. S. 6th Fleet with its third flat-top.

The Defense Department gave no reason for its surprise announcement Monday that the Mediterranean fleet's normal two-carrier force would be bolstered by the 60,000-ton super carrier Saratoga.

It said only that the decision was "part of a continuing program to improve the military capabilities and posture of the United States."

But in the background were these factors:

—The move will strengthen America's floating air bases at a time when U.S. land bases overseas are being criticized for some doubt.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 — The U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean will be reinforced with the addition of a third aircraft carrier, the Saratoga, today.

The 60,000-ton carrier Saratoga will sail from Norfolk, Va., Aug. 22, and the strength of the powerful Mediterranean naval striking force will be maintained with three instead of two carriers from now on. Neither the Defense Department nor the Navy offered any reason for strengthening the Sixth Fleet, although it had been recommended several years by its commanders.

NATO CRUISE

We head north

O, Goodie! Another hi-line

We left the sunny Mediterranean and sailed into the steel blue waters of the North Atlantic — our mission, Operation Swordthrust. This was to be the largest land, sea and air exercise in the history of NATO. In these next three weeks, we were to be an active part of a proof, the proof to the world that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is a powerful deterrent to aggression.

The weather got a little rough, as we progressed across the Arctic Circle; at times the water got rougher. During the operation, Saratoga played host to such dignitaries as Monsieur P. H. Spaak, President of the North Atlantic Council; Admiral Robert L. Dennison, Supreme Allied Commander; Rear Admiral Harold T. Deuterman, Commander Second Fleet; and members of the North Atlantic Council. This even was covered by members of the press from all over the globe, and was termed a "complete success."

BARCELONA

Barcelona, the capital of Catalonia, where the forbidden loyalist dialect is spoken and loved. With the romance of the Ramblas, quaint shops, the pageantry of Plaza de Toros, and the pride of a people, Barcelona is unique. These people are warm, and display a pride which is nothing less than aristocracy, and yet somehow different, in that wealth and poverty are overlooked. "We are Spain," they say . . . this, to them is significant.

While ambling through friendly streets, one might smell the blended aromas of roasting chicken, rotting wood, cheap perfumes, tangy sweetmeats, ancient stone . . . the crashing realization of the old being dragged into the commercial times of today.

As if blossoming in mysterious weathered faces, contrast is a medium, like a foreign tongue, used to paint a picture of reality. Barcelona is an island apart from the world, which like good wine has been mellowed by the passing of time.

GENOA

Ambling through the streets of Genoa, the city at first appeared to be somewhat nondescript, with nothing to set it apart from a dozen other Mediterranean ports. But gradually, she put on a different face, becoming a city of intrigue and mystery, a kaleidoscope of customs and color.

The hidden features of her face are carved gently in the side of the mountains, and flow gracefully to the sea. Her arms reach out along the coast and follow the fortress-capped mountains which control her depth and literally make the city a part of the shore line.

More hidden significance can be found in her small shops with their fashionable design, cradled neatly in dated buildings. At our fingertips were goods from all over the world, awaiting purchase by some world traveler who stopped at this, the threshold of Southern Europe.

"La Superba", a title naturally befitting this city, the birthplace of Columbus, was obviously considered well-founded by the famous visitors which have come to her shores.

Imagine a city living in the shadow of a sleeping giant, a city of beauty in spite of the scars of poverty and the ravages of war . . . A week spent in Naples revealed to the men of the Sara the many subtleties that give this place a characteristic charm. It appeared that the whole populace was in uniform — from traffic cops to customs officials to street cleaners. The smart dress blues of the men on liberty seemed to add a new dimension of color to the panorama of Napoli.

ROME

For centuries, Rome has been a lure to travellers, and while the SARATOGA rode at anchor in the Bay of Naples, over a hundred sailors packed their bags and boarded the train for the Eternal City. For some, it was a return trip, for others a new and wondrous experience, but for all, it was truly a 'Roman Holiday.'

"... all my trousers have cuffs!"

Livorno is a quiet commercial port that offered the "Sara" sailors a chance to relax and finish up the last of their Christmas shopping at the excellent Camp Darby P.X.

Also of great interest to most of the crew were the famed cities of Pisa and Florence, both within easy reach of the Saratoga anchorage.

CANNES

Do-it-yourself dishes.

One of the truly picturesque cities on the Mediterranean coast — Cannes . . . meeting place of wealthy playboys, princes and starlets . . . site of the internationally renowned Film Festival . . . and, equally important, the home of its local French people.

There are a lot of 'foreigners' in Cannes: from the inhabitants of the yacht mast forest, and oarsmen of the humbler craft in the bay, to the showgirls in such places as the UN Bar, a mecca of sorts, for anyone who has sailed with the Sixth Fleet.

The atmosphere of Cannes is a mixture of local color, as seen in her multifarious cafes and palm studded parks. All along the boardwalk there are casual strollers, old and young, alone and in groups — every other one with a dog which seems to match his or her personality.

The International invades such landmarks as the Carlton Hotel, enfronted by rows of limousines with chauffeurs stiffly waiting in the presence of their employers or milling about in their absence.

But for those who wanted to be French while in France, there was ample opportunity to get back into the city to some of the small but excellent restaurants; or to venture out into some of the small hamlets such as Grasse or St. Paul Du Vence.

It was all France . . . and we were able to see it — peasant, playboy, child, fisherman . . . and to hear it as well, the vivid expressiveness of light and articulate spoken French.

"Watch the skis . . . please!"

High in the French Alps, the little ski resort of Valberg provided a pleasant relief from shipboard duties.

Almost everyone braved the slopes for at least one run down the mountain, but for the most part, we were mariners out of our element. The excursion was a mixture of a lot of bruises, a few broken bones and many enjoyable memories.

As we ventured upward, we found ourselves standing upon the Acropolis, there to behold the Parthenon, brilliantly refracting the rays of the sun. It was magnificent, not only because of its architectural splendor, but because of its culturally saturated history. Athens, the Acropolis, the Parthenon — here is the birthplace and causality of our Western thought, literature and art.

We were there . . . and we shall remember it as the vineyard of our heritage — a little more, to say the least, than just another Mediterranean port.

25 February 1961 . . . Despite the chill of high winds and rough seas that kept us off the Florida coast for many long, impatient hours, in sight was home . . . Mayport, to which we had looked forward through the long Med Cruise. After interminable delays, the tugs pushed us into position and we endured, gladly, the antics of half a dozen brass bands, majorettes, and the many thousands who had turned out to greet us. With our eyes on loved ones, we waited those few extra moments, and then the crowds rushed aboard to welcome us home at last.

I've been a passenger in SARATOGA for several weeks, just for the ride. As a civilian guest of the Navy, I'm having the vivid privilege of learning something about a modern attack carrier operating planes far at sea. I wish that more Americans who live and do their thinking ashore, could share this experience. I believe they would feel as I do. At first they would have been impressed, almost awed, by the physical magnitude, the intricacy, the power, of SARATOGA. And then they would come to something more basic. All the impressiveness of SARATOGA is lifeless, functionless, meaningless - save for the men who serve her to give her life, function, meaning. The men of this ship make the whole heart of what I see here. By their skills, toils, attentions and devotions they make metal shapes into swift instruments potent for good, in a world threatened by evil. It is not easy work; its rewards are not material rewards. But the rewards are there. The families of SARATOGA's men would be proud to see their men at their work at sea.

The planes of Saratoga are Aloft and Ready

VAH-9
A3D Skywarrior

VFP-62
DET 43
F8U-1P Crusader

VA-34

A4D Skyhawk

VAW-12

WF2 Tracer

VF-31
F3H Demon

VA-35
AD5 Skyraider

VF-32

F8U Crusader

VA-36
A4D Skyhawk

In-flight refueling.
F3H Demon takes a drink from A4D Skyhawk.

The aircraft are Headed Home
their task completed.
Ahead,
the ship awaits their return...

Work on the ship goes on ...
Replenishment

Here it comes ...

Vertical replenishment.

Hi-line style

Red Ball Express

We eat tonight!

Down the mechanical conveyor belt . . .

Down the human chain of waiting hands . . .

Into the ovens under capable culinary supervision . . .

Into hearty, hot meals . . .

there it goes

The supplies move in an unbroken line onto the trays of hungry sailors.

Care package.

I'll take two.

That's the best you can buy

There are moments of relaxation, too ...

One banana split, please!

... and moments of solitude ...

"I think of you all the time . . ."

Catholic Mass on the foc's'le.

Jewish services in the Chapel.

A moment of devotion in a work-a-day setting . . .

a time to worship . . .

The Chaplain offers Communion at Protestant services.

...and then, it's back to work...

Fueling completed

"Testing ... 1 ... 2 ... 3 ... 440!!"

"One more course toward your high school diploma, sir."

Just before the lights went out ...

Big wheels ...

The perfect secretary.

Everything comes out in the wash.

Fireworks.

"And he stuck his head in the lion's mouth . . ."

... and more work ...

The fighting marines.

Captain's Plot recommends Course 090

Tilt.

I learned to do this in kindergarten.

Wired for sound.

Combat concurs . . .

The personnel in Personnel.

Gear set for A3D

Flight deck conference.

A study in concentration.

Administrative assistance.

Miles of files.

"You don't look so good yourself."

Tug-o-war with the Waccamaw

Marines and admirers.

Jump!

Mail Call

Central Control

Dial M for murder.

Last minute adjustment.

Stolen moment.

*The aircraft return with a swooping rush, descending on the flight deck with a roar . . .
and snag the wire . . .*

HOME!

Saratoga below . . .

Hook down.

The final moment, anxiously watched . . .

Caught.

Coming home . . .

The aircraft are home, another cycle ended.

In the Saratoga routine, the work has been done and the planes have flown.

It has not been easy work, but her men have been ready.

The moment of truth.

Helo on deck.

The pilots climb wearily from their aircraft.

Set the Air Department Integrity watch

It is the end of the day . . . below, the ship settles into nighttime quiet, while on the deck the silhouette of an A3D remains as if to guard against the night.

IN MEMORIAM

O Soul, thou pleasest me, I thee,
Sailing these seas or on the hills, or waking in the night,
Thoughts, silent thoughts, of Time and Space and Death, like waters flowing,
Bear me indeed as through the regions infinite,
Whose air I breathe, whose ripples hear, lave me all over,
Bathe me O God in thee, mounting to thee,
I and my soul to range in range of thee . . .

Reckoning ahead O Soul, when thou, the time achiev'd,
The seas all cross'd, weather'd the capes, the voyage done . . .
